Amos' Anodyne.

"We always wondered a little how Amos Dore and his wife got along," said Aunt Em Macomber. "Some in the neighborhood said they'd never overheard a single loud or cross word on either side, but Lije Daniels always stuck to it that Amos was as misable at home as a man could be."

"He never spoke right out till Amos died and Mrs. Dore went back up country to her folks. Then he let out."

"What?" queried Aunt Em's visitor.

"Well, Amos worked logging along side of Lije every winter, and summers they hayed together most all ways, and it seems," said Aunt Em impressively, "that Amos complained of his shoes hurting him about all the time. Finally Lije asked why he wore tight shoes."

"Why don't you get a pair big enough?" says Lije one day.

"Well, I'll tell you," Amos says. "When I wear tight shoes I forget all my other troubles."—Youth's Companion.

Polishing a Diamond.

The polishing of a diamond is a very slow process, because of the great hardness of the material; besides this, the work must be frequently interrupted to allow the disk to cool off after it has become overheated by friction. Each time a new facet is to be cut the diamond must be removed from the disk and reset at another angle, and the diamond cutter trusts to his eye alone to guide him in this delicate adjustment, although in the case of very small diamonds a magnifying glass is necessary. The skill shown in placing the stone in the heated metal, sometimes with the bare hand, is surprising. The regular brilliant has fifty-six facets, besides the table and the collet—thirty-two above the girdle and twenty-four below—but as eight facets are first formed, both above and below, each of these being recut into three or four smaller ones, there are considerably more than fifty-six separate surfaces to be cut.—Dr. George P. Kuuz in Century.

Qualities of the Topaz.

The name of the precious stone inserted in the ring of Gyges has not been handed down to us, but it is probable that it was the topaz, whose wonders Philostratus recounts in the life of Apollonius. An attribute of the sun and of fire, the ancients called it the gold magnet, as it was credited with the power of attracting that metal, indicating its veins and discovering the treasures. Heliodorus in his story of Theagenes and Charicles says that the topaz saves from fire all those who wear it and that Charicles was preserved by a topaz from the fiery vengeance of Arsaces, queen of Ethiopia. This stone was one of the first talismans that Theagenes possessed in Egypt. The topaz at present symbolizes Christian virtues—faith, justice, temperance, gentleness, clemency.—Paris Figaro.

Called His Papa Down.

Little Willy is a bright boy and a saucy boy. His apt answers have often turned away wrath and often turned it upon him strongly. The other day his father was reprimanding him for some misdeed, and Willy was answering very saucily. The father became very angry and, seizing the youngster by the collar, said: "See here, young man, you must not talk like that to me. I never gave my father impudence when I was a boy."

Willy was not fazed at all. With a cherubic smile he looked into papa's eyes and said, "But, papa, maybe your father didn't need it." "Twas all off. Willy escaped punishment, while papa retired to another room.

This Vale of Tears.

The news that science had at length discovered the means of destroying the germ of the last ill which flesh was heir to called forth rapturous rejoicings throughout the world.

"Henceforth perfect health will reign universally!" people everywhere exclaimed and gave themselves up to congratulations.

But that was not to be. In the very next day's paper was the account of somebody having invented a microscope so powerful as to reveal a lot more germs, which meant, of course, that it would be no time at all until everybody was sick again.—Puck.

Chocolate.

Although the "drink called chocolate" did not appear in England until 1657 its restorative properties soon became generally known. Thus, on May 24, 1661, after an evening of carousing, Pepys "worked in the morning, with my head in a sad taking through the last night's drink, which I am very sorry for; so rose and went out with Mr. Creed to drink our morning draft, which he did give me in chocolate to settle my stomach."

On the Mend.

Bronson—I noticed your wife sitting by the window sewing this morning. I thought you told me yesterday she was ill. Woodson—So she was, but today she's on the mend.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Going Out.

Mr. B.—There, I've let my cigar go out. Do you know that it spoils a cigar, no matter how good it is, if you allow it to go out? Mrs. B.—Yes; a cigar is a good deal like a man in that respect.

His Start.

The World—What a job, eh? What's your recommendation? Graduate—My A. B. The World—Sit right down, and I'll teach you the rest of the alphabet.—New York Life.

METAL MONEY.

The Greeks Started Coining Long Before the Christian Era.

The invention of coinage is due to the Greeks, most probably to the banks of Halicarnassos and adjacent Asia Minor Greek colonies, who toward the end of the eighth century B. C. began stamping the small gold and silver ingots which passed through their hands as currency with a mark of some sort intended to guarantee the weight and purity of the metal. Such ingots very soon assumed a round and more regular shape, which we find already in the older silver coins from Aegina, nearly contemporary with the Asia Minor "beans."

Curious to say, none of the surrounding peoples with whom the Asiatic and European Greeks were in constant communication, political or commercial, took up the wonderful invention which at present seems to us of such obvious necessity that we scarcely realize how the civilized world of old can ever have got on without it. As a matter of fact, however, neither the Phoenicians, with their practical commercial sense, nor the Lydians nor the Persians, who claimed the supremacy over the very cities where the new currency was initiated, nor, of course, the Egyptians, ever had coinage till the conquests of Alexander disseminated the Greek civilization all through the eastern world.

The Romans came to know of it through the Greek cities in Sicily and Magna Graecia and began striking silver coins toward the beginning of the third century B. C. In the meantime with the Greeks die sinking, like everything else, had fallen within the domain of art, and their coins, above all those struck during the fifth and fourth centuries B. C. by the Dorians of Sicily at Syracuse and Agrigento, have never been equaled and remain forever a standard of beauty for the artist and a model of perfection for the die sinker.—London Saturday Review.

A FAMOUS BANKNOTE.

The One That Cruikshank Drew and the Crowds It Drew.

One day about the year 1818 George Cruikshank was passing Newgate on his way to the exchange when, seeing a crowd collected, he went forward to learn what was the matter and saw that it was the execution of several men and women. He was horrified at the spectacle and on inquiring learned that the woman was being hanged for passing counterfeit one pound notes. He learned also that this punishment was quite a common thing, even though the poor wretches often sinned in ignorance, being the dupes of men who sent them to buy some trifles and return with the change.

Wrung with pity and with shame, Cruikshank went home and immediately, under the inspiration of his feeling, sketched a grotesque caricature of a banknote. He called it a bank restriction note—not to be initiated. He represented on it a place of execution, with spaces about filled in with halibuts and mauls, a figure of Britannia devouring her children and transport ships bearing the lucky or unlucky ones who had escaped death to Van Dieman's Land or Australia, while in place of the well known signature of Abraham Newland was that of "J. Ketch."

He had just finished this when his publisher, Hone, entered and, seeing it, begged to have it for publication. So Cruikshank etched it and gave it to Hone, who exhibited it for sale in his window with startling effect. Crowds quickly began to gather and purchased so eagerly that the issue was soon exhausted.

Cruikshank was kept hard at work making more etchings. The crowds grew so great that the street was blocked, and the mayor had to send soldiers to clear it. Hone realized over £700 in a few days.—London Standard.

Hawkeye.

Iowa almost from the date of its admission has been called the Hawkeye State. Hawkeye was the name of a noted Indian chief who in the early days caused no little trouble along the western border of American civilization.

Of an average cup of tea 99 per cent is water.

Why Musicians "Tune Up" in Public.

Some people have been puzzled to understand why musicians tune up their instruments in public and not before they enter the orchestra. If they attended to their tune before entering the theater or concert room they might find the temperature different in the place of performance, and the instruments would not be in tune.

Flowers of the Arctic.

There are 122 kinds of flowers found in the arctic regions.

Bangkok.

The town of Bangkok is largely afloat, the houses being built on rafts of bamboo.

The Fohn Wind.

When the fohn wind blows in some parts of Switzerland the natives are not allowed to make any fires or light candles. A conflagration would be unmanageable.

The First Envelopes.

The first use of envelopes was in 1847. The first envelope ever made is in the British museum.

Earthquakes and Bridges.

The damage to bridges by earthquakes is due generally to the banks of valleys being drawn together, according to W. H. Hobbs, whose conclusions are based on a study of earthquakes in the United States, India and Japan extending back to 1886.

The Gift of Gab.

To "have the gift of gab" means the gift of the (use of the) mouth, "gab" being the Scotch word for mouth.

Things Theatrical.

Early in the fall "Little Nemo" is to make a tour of the south.

George Leslie has been engaged by the Aborn Opera company. Booth Parkington has written a comedy drama for Otis Skinner.

"The Whirlpool" is to be seen in New York next season, according to present plans.

The London Frohman company playing in "Peter Pan" is to go to Berlin and Vienna.

Charles Frohman will possibly have a theater in Berlin and another in Paris, where he will present plays by English and American authors.

Next season William Gillette will rest on account of his health, and the season after that he will make a farewell tour in a repertory of his famous successes.

Train and Track.

All the tracks of the Illinois Central within the city of Chicago will be electrified and the use of steam locomotives abandoned.

The New York court of appeals has decided that a person does not reserve a seat in a railway coach by placing his baggage in it.

The Maine Central railroad has placed in service on its branches running through forest regions a number of oil burning locomotives.

On the lines of the Great Eastern railway in England a new regulation prohibiting the transportation of blind and infirm persons unless accompanied by attendants has been adopted.

Law Points.

A gas stove and window shades running on rollers attached by the owner to his dwelling house designed for a single family are held in Hook versus Bolton (Mass.), 85 N. E. 175; 17 L. E. A. (N. S.), 639, not to be fixtures which will pass with a mortgage of the realty.

A common carrier is held in Stiles versus Louisville and Nashville Railroad company (Ky.), 110 S. W. 820; 18 L. R. A. (N. S.), 86, to be absolutely liable for the destruction by fire of animals while in its possession for transportation which is not caused by the act of God or the public enemy.

The Cookbook.

The addition of a beaten egg to the mashed potatoes used for potato cakes will be found well worth while.

Before broiling a steak dust it with salt and pepper and rub it with salad oil. This will greatly improve it.

Baked apples with cream are served in many households for a breakfast fruit. They may be baked the day before and heated for morning use.

Oatmeal when thinned to the consistency of a gruel and sweetened makes a delicious crisp cake if put in a hot buttered pan and baked in a very quick oven.

The Maelstrom.

The famous maelstrom whirlpool is about four geographical miles in diameter.

Girding With the Sword.

The ceremony of investing a new sultan with the sword of Othman, the founder of the Ottoman dominion, is called taklid saif, "girding with the sword." This ceremony corresponds with the ceremony of coronation.

The Compass at the South Pole.

The needle of the ordinary compass refuses to work when near the south pole.

Convicts in Japan.

In Japan a convict may earn enough money while in jail to maintain his family. He has the best of food and lodging, is taught a trade and if he wishes pursues the study of foreign languages.

First German Tragedy.

The first German tragedy was "Cleopatra," written by Von Lobenstein in 1671.

The Land of Cain.

Labrador, according to a local tradition which the gleaners of folklore consider of much importance, is the land to which Cain was banished after the murder of Abel. That country, according to the legend, was cursed by God with perpetual silence on the day when it was granted to the first murderer. Certain it is that the whole region has been silent and desolate ever since it was first known to white men.

Bangkok.

The town of Bangkok is largely afloat, the houses being built on rafts of bamboo.

The Fohn Wind.

When the fohn wind blows in some parts of Switzerland the natives are not allowed to make any fires or light candles. A conflagration would be unmanageable.

To "have the gift of gab" means the gift of the (use of the) mouth, "gab" being the Scotch word for mouth.

THE BOTTLE CONJURER.

An Old Time Hoax That Caused a Riot in a London Theater.

In 1748 there appeared in the newspapers of London an advertisement stating that on a certain night a remarkable conjurer would perform in the Haymarket theater. He would, the advertisement ran, borrow a common walking cane from any member of the audience and "thereupon play the music of every instrument now in use."

It was also promised that he would take an ordinary wine bottle, place it on a table in the middle of the stage, get into it "in the sight of all the spectators" and stir while in it. In the same issue of the newspaper was a second advertisement announcing the arrival of Signor Capifello Jampedo, "a surprising dwarf not taller than a tobacco pipe," who engaged to perform with and outdo the "bottle conjurer," contorting himself in all manner of shapes and finally "opening his mouth wide and jamming down his own throat." This feat, not without reason, Signor Jampedo described as the "most wonderful wonder of all wonders as ever the world wondered at."

The night set for this dual display of "wonderful wonders" found the theater packed from roof to pit. But as the time passed and the curtain remained down catcalls and hisses began to be heard. Then a man in the pit stood up and in a calm voice announced that if double prices were paid the conjurer would get into a pint instead of a quart bottle. At once the audience realized that they were being hoaxed. Somebody threw a lighted candle into a box, and this was the signal for a riot. Benches were torn up and boxes pulled down, while the timid rushed for the doors, with great loss of hats, swords and canes. Those who remained, reentered by roughs from outside, completely destroyed the interior of the theater and finished up by dragging the scenery into the street, where it was burned in a huge bonfire. Nor was the author of this imposture ever discovered, although it was commonly attributed either to an actor who had been discharged or to a mischievous nobleman bent on winning a wager.—New York Tribune.

DISGUISES FAILED.

Experiences of Emperor Napoleon I. at a Masked Ball.

The Emperor Napoleon I. once announced to his valet that he intended on a certain evening going to a ball at the Italian embassy and requested that complete costumes should be sent in advance. The valet, Constant, obeyed and attended his imperious master and commenced to dress him in a manner which might, had the emperor followed the valet's advice, have detected detection. Constant had some trouble with Napoleon over one or two minor matters, but when it came to changing his top boots for shoes the emperor resolutely refused.

Going into the ballroom, Napoleon at once relapsed into his accustomed attitude and, wishing to engage a lady in conversation, approached her with his hands behind his back. To his first question she prefaced her reply with "sire." Turning away abruptly, he went back to his room and said: "You were right, Constant. I have been recognized. Give me another costume and shoes this time."

The valet redressed his master and warned him to keep his hands at his side. No sooner had he entered the room the second time than once more he relapsed into his natural attitude. This time a lady addressed him. "Sire, you are recognized." Once more the emperor left the room in disgust.

Returning to his room, Napoleon was disguised for the third time. His toilet complete, he went back to the ballroom, he was entered as if it were a barrack room, pushing and swaggering. He was at once detected, and some one whispered to him. "Your majesty is recognized." Another disappointment and another change, still with the same result, and in the end the emperor left the embassy convinced that it was impossible to conceal his identity.

The Mathematical Problem.

Little Marion was busy at her "home work." After a great many perplexed frowns and much nibbling at her pencil she looked up and said:

"The only answer I can get to this example is 'five and three-fourths horses.'" Do you s'pose that is right, mamma?"

"Well, I don't know," answered her mother cautiously. "It sounds rather queer."

A long pause; then the small arithmetician's face lit up with a smile.

"Oh, I know," she cried; "I'll reduce the three-fourths horses to colts!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Missed the Name.

Guest of the Doctor's date home from the theater—Hurry up old chap, and let me in. Absentminded Doctor (who has forgotten all about his visitor)—Who are you? Guest—Mr. Trane, Doctor—Missed a train, have you? Well, catch the next.—London Fun.

Well Enough.

"Didn't I tell you to let well enough alone?" said the doctor to the convalescent who had disobeyed and was suffering a relapse.

"Yes, doctor," whined the patient, "but I wasn't well enough."—Detroit Free Press.

Pacifistic Fondness.

"Do you think that most people nowadays worship money?"

"No; I won't go so far as that," answered the home grown philosopher, "but I will say that the love of money is a common platonic."—New York Journal.

A Field for Honor.

Of infinite more import to man and his progeny seem problems other than the veracity of Cook's Arctic exploits or the discovery of the Pole itself. Yet into such pursuits riches are cast and thought force concentrated. The explorer himself may not live his life in his own way if he did not have such adventures, but greater vistas of utility unfold themselves to philanthropists, and by the death of Mr. Harriman is brought out the necessity of mastering the most baffling and baleful problem of the age—a cure for cancer. Harriman's death from the malady would seem to indicate that money could not buy what does not exist—a cure for the disease.

The insidious cancer germ is conceded to be monarch of men. That it lives unconquered and malignant should stir the entire world, not only the medical and scientific portion, but most particularly those whose wealth would enable them to fit up laboratories and enlist scientific genius to combat the disease.

Money has been expended and brains taxed, but still the field is open—a magnificent one to conquer, and proud could our nation be if an American discovered a cure.

Discovered.

Think me no nature fakir,
I startle those I tell;
But long ago, 'tis all too true,
I found the pole right well.

I often thought to run to earth
The elusive botheration,
Though exploration is not my suit.
Nor hunting my vocation.

No expedition was at hand,
Nor finances to speak,
But I in medias res
Plunged on the pole to seek.

When on the scent* I finally got;
Mon dieu! where was I at?
I found the pole, elusive pole,
The scourge of men—pole cat.

* It was no two-bit piece.

THE Western Federation of Improvement Club's convention at Seattle was an excellent gathering for the dissemination of public spirit and the exchange of good civic ideas, yet only three cities of California sent representatives. The delegate from Alameda took folders descriptive of his city and placed one on each chair in the convention hall. Before the big meeting was called to order every one there knew that Alameda was on the map and just where. Sonoma, please take notice.

A Written Excuse for Peary.

Veracity one can expect
From scientists 'tis true;
For method and exactness
Add to their point of view.
Yet Peary, though for truth renowned,
We may well doubt, since he
Lost seven toes while sailing once
The icy Arctic sea.
Minus his tootsies, we're in the dark,
For how could Peary toe the mark?

The Vintage and Price of Grapes

Winemaking has commenced in this valley. The vintage bids fair to be a most excellent one as the season has been a favorable one for wine grapes. So far the California Wine Association has not set a price on wine grapes and the big corporation is holding off to see what the independent wine-makers are offering. The price is quoted in this valley at $10 to $12 per ton.

Now is the time to lay concrete sidewalks. See Trudgen, the stone mason, about it.

THE ST. FRANCIS CHURCH FAIR.

Will Open Next Wednesday in Union Hall and Continue Five Days--The Booths.

The Ladies of the St. Francis Church have perfected all arrangements for a grand bazaar to be held at Union Hall. The affair will open on Wednesday evening, Sept. 29th and close the following Monday evening, October 4th. For the past few months several needed improvements have been made in the parochial house. The Church, too, has received a new coat of paint. As a consequence much expense has been incurred. To secure funds to meet this expense, the Fair will be held. The Ladies are very enthusiastic in their efforts to make it a financial success and are engaged in a friendly and good-natured rivalry to make the best showing for their respected booths.

As an inducement to their friends and patrons to pay them a visit they have arranged an excellent program for each evening and secured some fine talent. The opening night will be in the hands of the Ladies of the American Booth, who promise to give a rare treat.

On Thursday night the Sisters booth will entertain. On Friday night the ladies of St. Francis booth have many surprises in store for the visitors. The greatest feature of the Fair will be a grand performance given on Saturday night by the local minstrels, under the direction of Messrs. R. McDonnell and Jack Kelly, assisted by well-known talent from Santa Rosa. The local boys will have some jokes to crack, hits to make and the latest songs to sing.

Admission to the hall on each evening will be 25 cents. The ladies extend a cordial invitation to all the people of the valley to pay a visit to the Fair and contribute to a worthy cause. The booths will be in charge of the following ladies: Presentation Convent booth, under the direction of the Sisters, assisted by Mesdames Richards, Pinelli, Ciucci, Mullen, Gericke and Valente, Misses M. Valente, Millie and Elsie Richards and the Convent children.

St. Francis booth--Mrs. Landsborough, Mrs. Parhamore, Mrs. Emparan, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Thomson, Mrs. Batchelor, Mrs. Dunn and a bunch of pretty girls.

American booth--Mesdames J. H. Murray, F. Koenig, E. Kearney, K. Murray and J. N. Dowdall, Adele and Margie Livernash, Irene Tomasi, Katie Watt and Miss Miller.

Soda and Lemonade booth--Mrs. Muldry, Mrs. Farrell and the Misses Hickey.

Fish Pond--Presided over by Mrs. M. Harashty and assisted by Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. N. V. Harashty, Juanita Harashty and Mary Boccio.

GOV. GILLETT AND THE OLD MISSION.

Writes to Secretary of Sonoma Woman's Club About its Care and Preservation.

Mrs. Alice Wagon, Secretary of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club, recently addressed a letter to Gov. Gillett, calling his attention to the neglected condition of the Sonoma Mission buildings and the efforts of the club women to preserve the historical landmark by arresting the work of decay.

The Governor's reply follows: State of California, Executive Office, Sacramento.

ALICE WAGON, Sonoma, Cal., Dear Madam: Your letter of September 8th enclosing cards of the old Mission San Francisco de Solano has been received. I am pleased to learn that the women have undertaken to raise sufficient money to preserve this old relic or landmark, and hope you may be successful.

Several months ago I took up the question of having a commission appointed to look after the care and preservation of the Missions of California, and I think this ought to be done. I am sure you will find people enough in California to contribute money for the purpose of keeping these old missions in repair, and would gladly do so if a good commission was appointed to take them in charge.

We have but few historical places in this State, and it seems that we ought to preserve those that we have.

Yours respectfully, J. N. GILLETT.

Plaza Committee of the Woman's Club and City Trustees.

The action of the Plaza Committee of the Woman's Club in turning over certain funds to the City Trustees to be expended by them on the Plaza, having been erroneously reported by a local contemporary, we publish verbatim the resolution passed by the ladies turning their plaza fund over to the city. The motion was made by Mrs. Wagon and seconded by Mrs. Hotz and unanimously carried. The resolution follows:

Resolved, That this Club give to the Plaza Committee of the Board of City Trustees our plaza fund to use as much of it as is necessary to complete the work outside the Plaza on Napa street. If any of the fund is remaining after this is done the Plaza Committee, if it sees fit, may continue the work on any other side of the square.

Mrs. Emparan and Mrs. Hotz, after the passage of the resolution, were appointed a committee to wait upon Trustee Bates, chairman of the Plaza Committee, and inform him of the action taken by the club.

Tragic and Singular Death of an Unknown Tramp.

John Bork, a tramp about 25 years of age, met a tragic and singular death in the freight yards of the Northwestern Pacific in Petaluma early Thursday morning.

With a companion named Geo. Newman he boarded a freight car in this place Wednesday evening for the purpose of stealing a ride. After secreting themselves in a box car both went to sleep and did not awake until the train came to a standstill in Petaluma. Bork went to the door of the car and opened it to ascertain his whereabouts. Just as he put his head through the partially open door an engine switching in the yards backed against the string of cars with great violence. The sudden jar shut the partially opened door like a flash, crushing the man's head between the door and door-frame, reducing it to a pulp and scattering his brains in all directions.

The remains were discovered immediately by the trainmen and taken to Blackburn's undertaking parlors, where an inquest was subsequently held.

At the inquest later, Bork's companion, Newman, told of their having picked hops near Sonoma, and serving a five days sentence there for being involved in a drunken row after concluding their work. They boarded the car to steal a ride to San Francisco on being released from jail Wednesday afternoon and were trying to locate themselves when the accident occurred.

A Distinguished Woman Will Address Meeting To-Night.

Mrs. Laura Bride Powers will be one of the speakers at the meeting to be held in Union Hall this evening to devise ways and means for the restoration and preservation of the old Mission San Francisco de Solano. Mrs. Powers, who is the President of the History and Landmarks League of California, addressed an audience in the old City Pavilion in this place on July 4th, 1903, on behalf of the old Missions of California, and is well known in this city.

AN EL VERANO LABOR DAY EPISODE

An Irish Flag is Flung to the Breeze and a Glowing Tribute Paid to Banner of the Emerald Isle.

"The Leader" of San Francisco, in its issue of the 18th inst., publishes the following episode of the observation of Labor Day in this valley, which our news-chaser overlooked in his quest for items last week:

"Sonoma Valley, the scene of many historic flag-raising, was again witness to a patriotic demonstration when the beautiful flag of Ireland was proudly flung to the breeze on Labor Day.

"To M. F. Mullen, the popular station agent of El Verano, is due the credit for raising the banner of Erin, and making the event a memorable one in that section.

"Sonoma Valley is famous for flag-raising. On July 4, 1823, Padre Altamira raised the standard of Spain over the Mission in Sonoma, and on the 14th of June, 1846, the Bear Flag was run up in the same town. Two years later the Stars and Stripes were hoisted to the flag staff, replacing the Bear Flag.

But it remained for Labor Day, 1909, to witness an episode in the history of Sonoma never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it. Delegations from the hotels, villas, vineyards and ranches for miles around assembled in front of Mr. Mullen's lawn, where a new forty-foot flagstaff had been erected. At 9 o'clock A. M., Mr. Mullen, assisted by his family, fastened to the halyards a standard Irish flag, six by ten feet, and amid the resounding and enthusiastic cheers of the large assemblage hoisted to the top of the staff the flag that conquered a thousand battle fields. It presented a splendid picture as the breeze stiffened its folds, and the glint of the sun intensified its verdant hue and made brighter the golden, crownless harp.

"Mr. Mullen is imbued with an intense Irish National spirit. He feelingly told the great pleasure he derived from seeing his patriotic act appreciated by the residents of Sonoma Valley, and assured his audience that whenever a French, German, Italian or Swiss flag goes up, so, too, will Ireland's flag.

"The gathering dispersed after giving three cheers for M. F. Mullen and an Irish Republic."

Caboose on Southern Pacific Burned at Schellville.

When the Southern Pacific freight train pulled into Schellville station Tuesday afternoon the caboose was discovered to be on fire. The train men got busy and by switching and sidetracking the blazing car succeeded in saving the balance of the train which consisted of a long string of freight cars laden with combustible material.

The caboose and contents, consisting of way bills and personal effects of the train men, was completely destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

PIONEER WOMAN PASSES AWAY.

Mrs. Maria Tate, Who "Crossed the Plains" in 1846, Makes Her Final Journey to the Great Unknown.

Mrs. Maria Tate is dead. She passed away Saturday morning after a long and patient illness surrounded by her family.

What were more fitting to the memory of this pioneer woman than the flags floating at half-mast from their bairdards within a few minutes after she had passed away?

For years Mrs. Tate was revered and honored as the pioneer woman of historic Sonoma, where she had resided continuously for sixty-three years.

When a little child of four years she "crossed the plains" with her parents in 1846, who located here in the fall of that year with the family of the late Nicholas Carrieger, who had journeyed with them across the great American desert and over the Rockies and Sierra Nevada mountains.

Here it was that Mrs. Tate grew up from childhood into young womanhood and married. Her two sons, John and George, passed away years ago, the former when a small boy and the latter shortly after attaining his majority.

The deceased was the sister of Geo. W. Lewis, ex-Postmaster of Santa Rosa. Joseph Lewis and Mrs. James H. Albertson of this place, Miss Ida Gillan and Mrs. L. L. Lewis are the surviving nieces.

Mrs. Tate was a native of Ohio and was 67 years of age.

The funeral took place Monday from her late residence and was largely attended by relatives and friends.

EL VERANO BRIEFS.

Mr. A. W. Weaver and daughter spent Sunday in the metropolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Peterson and little son were San Francisco visitors Sunday.

Mrs. E. H. Cliff and Mrs. W. H. Bridges are spending a few weeks at Dillon's Beach.

Mrs. Sarah Baines, accompanied by her son, Harry Baines, has gone to Marshfield, Oregon to visit relatives.

Miss Alice Kearney, after a visit of several weeks with her home folks here, returned to Oakland Monday.

El Verano Villa, Crane's, Rossi's Koerner's and our other resorts are still entertaining large numbers of visitors.

Messrs. Weigand, Bruns and Lounibos have let out a contract to whitewash their respective out-buildings and fences in this place. This improvement will add much to El Verano's appearance.

Mr. O. E. Benjamin, mine host of the Bellevue Hotel, reports the summer business as very good considering the lateness of the season. Sixty boarders are registered at his popular resort this week.

George Bruns, our well-known poultryman, has gone to San Francisco for treatment for an ailment of the hip. Mr. Bruns thought for many years he was a sufferer from rheumatism and only recently discovered that his trouble was hip disease.

KEEPING HIS BALANCE.

A Story With a Moral That Is Told Among the Tartars.

There is a story told among the Tartars which has a moral for the civilized men of the present day. It is to this effect: Robo, cousin of the great mogul, was condemned to death for participation in a rebellion. The most skillful swordsman in the empire was provided for the execution, and the great mogul and his court were present as spectators.

The thin, keen blade flashed in the sunlight and descended upon the bare neck of Robo, who stood upright to receive the stroke.

The executioner's work was so deftly done that, though the head was severed, not a vital organ was disturbed. Robo remained standing.

"What, Robo, art thou not beheaded?" exclaimed the great mogul.

"My lord, I am," replied Robo, "but as long as I keep my balance right my head will not fall off."

The great mogul was placated. A hand was put on Robo's neck, and he recovered. He afterward became a loyal subject and was made cashier of the empire because, as the great mogul remarked:

"He knows that if he keeps his balance right his head will not come off."

MAKESHIFT COMPASS.

Float a Magnetized Sewing Needle in a Bowl of Water.

If a thoroughly dry and clean sewing needle is carefully laid on the surface of water in a basin the needle will float in spite of the high density of steel—seven or eight times that of water. On close inspection it is found that the surface of the water is depressed under the needle, much as if there were a thin film stretched over the water and slightly indented by the weight of the needle.

This property of liquids of offering a certain resistance to a force exerted upon their surface is termed "surface tension." The magnitude of the force of surface tension varies from one liquid to another. It is greatest in the case of mercury. The cause of the phenomenon must probably be looked for in the attraction of the liquid molecules to one another.

A sewing needle thus floating upon water may be used as a compass if it has previously been magnetized. It will then point north and south and will maintain this position if the containing vessel is moved about. If the needle is displaced by force it will return to its position along the magnetic meridian as soon as the restraint is removed.—Chicago Tribune.

Locating a Broken Wire.

When a telegraph wire is broken or damaged, say, several hundred miles away, how does the operator, sitting in his office, know exactly where the accident occurred?

The explanation is simple. It requires, as every one knows, considerable force to send electricity through a wire. The longer the wire the greater, of course, must be the force required. This force is measured in units called by electricians "ohms." Let us suppose that a wire between a New York office and a point 150 miles away has broken somewhere. The telegrapher knows that when the wire was intact there were required, say, 2,100 ohms to facilitate the current, or fourteen ohms to the mile. He now finds that he can send a current with only 700 ohms. Dividing 700 by 14, he finds that the break in the wire is fifty miles from his end.—New York Tribune.

Foresight.

Little George, who was four years old, had been told many Bible stories. Among them was the story of the flood and the building of the ark by Noah. One day a storm threatened. The clouds grew darker, the wind arose, and suddenly the rain began to fall. "Auntie," said George, "do you think it is going to storm?"

"Yes, I think it will," was the reply. "Do you think it will be a hard storm?" asked the little fellow.

"Yes, I think it will be a hard storm," the aunt replied.

"Well, don't you think some of us had better begin building an ark?" he asked.—Los Angeles Times.

The Man and the Mummy.

"This," said the guide who was plotting a bunch of tourists through Egypt as he pointed to a mummy, "was a high priest, the wisest man of his day. He lived to a great age."

"Was his last illness fatal?" queried the wag of the bunch.

"Of course it was," answered the guide, with a look of pity at the other.

"That's queer," rejoined the waggy person. "His present appearance would seem to indicate that he was permanently cured."—Chicago News.

Too Big a Price.

Does the pursuit of wealth cut the American man of business off from the old-fashioned relish of books and society? In other words, is he paying too big or disproportionate a price in time and strength for wealth and commercial prominence? My answer would be "Yes" beyond question.—A. Barton Hepburn in Century.

Easy Job.

The Boss—I'd like to give you employment, young man, but there is no work to do. The Applicant—That's just the sort of job I'd like, sir, if the salary were satisfactory.—Cleveland Leader.

Little minds are too much wounded by little things; great minds see all and are not even hurt.—La Rochefoucauld.

A Long Dance.

The longest dance on record is probably that of William Kemp, an actor of some celebrity in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. He was a comedian and danced all the way from London to Norwich.

He was attended by a taberner, a servant and an overseer, and it was doubtless a good thing for him that there were no omnibuses or police then, for they would probably have imposed more impediments in the way of his progress than did the country people.

He started with several presents of groats and crooked stixes for luck, and, laden with these, he danced to Stratford with out rest.

Subsequently he went in for early rising to avoid market people, and, though suffering from a sprain of the hip which he received, he danced it well again, to the delight of the crowd which accompanied him, some 200 in number.

When he reached Norwich he had to dance in and out of the city twice, for his overseer missed him in the crowd and made him do the distance over again to avoid any possibility of error.—London Graphic.

How She Did It.

"So she refused you?"
